

Global Faculty Initiative

Renewing Christian intellectual life in the world's research universities

PREVIEW RESPONSE

Is Justice a Treatment Goal for the Good Therapist?

John R. Peteet

Harvard Medical School

Justice · Medicine · 1 min read facultyinitiative.net/article/is-justice-a-treatment-goal-for-the-good-therapist

If being just in the first order is a virtue, it would seem relevant in mental health care – as a treatment goal for some individuals, perhaps as an ingredient in the process of therapy, and as a characteristic of a good therapist.

Welcoming input from those to whom one is rightly accountable seems (a) to involve an assessment of the just basis of the relationship, and (b) to be an expression of justice, i.e. of giving what is due.

ABOUT THIS DOCUMENT

Document type	Preview Response
Dialogue	Justice
Discipline	Medicine
Author	John R. Peteet
Read online	facultyinitiative.net/article/is-justice-a-treatment-goal-for-the-good-therapist

Global Faculty Initiative

Renewing Christian intellectual life in the world's research universities