

Global Faculty Initiative

Renewing Christian intellectual life in the world's research universities

PREVIEW RESPONSE

Rights Based on Worth Links Justice to Anthropology

Gordon Menzies

University of Technology Sydney

Justice • Social Sciences • 1 min read facultyinitiative.net/article/rights-based-on-worth-links-justice-to-anthropology

J S Mills conception of society is that unless you harm others (in which case 2nd order comes in) the only thing that determines proper action is your unfettered freedom. I have criticized this framework.

I argue in a book that the Power Discourse of Nietzsche which privileges the strong, competent and beautiful provides a legitimizing narrative for free market liberalism.

Grounding justice in rights based on worth (or place in the scriptural narrative) connects justice to anthropology and a narrative of human flourishing, which has been a concern of my economic work with Donald Hay

ABOUT THIS DOCUMENT

Document type	Preview Response
Dialogue	Justice
Discipline	Social Sciences
Author	Gordon Menzies
Read online	facultyinitiative.net/article/rights-based-on-worth-links-justice-to-anthropology

Global Faculty Initiative

Renewing Christian intellectual life in the world's research universities