

Global Faculty Initiative

Renewing Christian intellectual life in the world's research universities

PREVIEW RESPONSE

We Know What Justice Demands. Why Don't We Do It?

Dorothy Oluwagbemi-Jacob

University of Calabar

Justice • Humanities • 1 min read facultyinitiative.net/article/we-know-what-justice-demands-why-dont-we-do-it

The problem of justice at the first order level, both in the Old Testament Scripture and contemporary world can be traced to human natural propensity to be egocentric: How can this natural propensity be tempered so that the human person can see the external other as the extension of the self that is deserving of consideration and respect regarding rights and justice?

Perpetrators of the acts of injustice at the first order level know that they are engaged in justice breaches but choose to pay lip service to justice. How can knowing and doing what justice demands be made to connect?

ABOUT THIS DOCUMENT

Document type	Preview Response
Dialogue	Justice
Discipline	Humanities
Author	Dorothy Oluwagbemi-Jacob
Read online	facultyinitiative.net/article/we-know-what-justice-demands-why-dont-we-do-it

Global Faculty Initiative

Renewing Christian intellectual life in the world's research universities